PRE-RECORDED INTERVIEWS

Candidates are asking for a $6000 scholarship over a period of four or six years). Moving away from live interviews, the purpose of the one-way video interview is to confirm the candidate meets the basic requirements for the scholarship. If needed, a follow-up interview may be required. Here are some helpful tips:

Read and follow the instructions very carefully

You will be more successful in the interview and you will demonstrate your ability to work carefully and thoroughly by following the directions for the interview very carefully. Skipping this step — or just quickly glancing at the instructions — can automatically disqualify you before the interview even begins. Avoid making assumptions about the process that could be wrong.

Ensure the Right Device is Used

Bad recordings influence the outcome of the interview process. Proper lighting, sound, and background say a lot about the candidate.

Have your Interview Answers Ready

A positive for a recording is one can redo the video until it is perfected. As the requirements are provided, the recording should be flawless.

Practice, Practice, Practice

Choose a quiet spot where, hopefully, you will be the only person visible (and audible). Don't make the mistake of trying to do this interview in a busy place with many distractions around. Keep the interview background as simple as possible, like a blank white wall.

Dress the Part

While your interviewer can only see your top half in a video interview, it's a good idea to wear full professional attire from head to toe to avoid any unnecessary embarrassment. Professional attire usually means a suit or blazer, a shirt, dress pants, or a skirt.

Look Directly at the Camera

When you are answering a question, look directly at the camera rather than at your computer screen. Imagine that the person who will be viewing this video is right there. Pretend you are talking to that person.

Pay Attention to the Clock

Usually, these interviews have a time limit. So, put a clock where you can easily see it, and use the time wisely.
